Manuela Stefan is a European/Canadian lifestyle and equine photographer with a passion for travel. Her "Graceful Horses" collection came to life as a result of her strong connection with the spirit of the horse, which she follows worldwide.

Manuela's fine equine art collections have been exhibited in galleries based in Montana, as well as Toronto and Collingwood in Canada. It is with great excitement that she will participate in the Western Design Conference for the first time. Inspired by this new adventure, Manuela is currently in the process of designing and creating her first functional design piece, to be shown at the WDC, that will be a new way of employing her photographic work.

Located at the foot of the West Elk Mountains in Crawford, Colorado, North Rim Glass Studio is owned and operated by glass artists Jared and Nicole Davis. With over thirty years of combined glass experience, including a two-year apprenticeship with Swedish glass masters Jan-Erik Ritzman and Sven Åke Carlsson, together they've created a successful business specializing in custom lighting and one-of-a-kind fine art.

"The fragile grandeur of the Desert Southwest, to me, is like an open book, allowing a close up inspection of the forces of creation," Jared says.

Inspired by her experiences growing up in Colorado and her love for Scandinavian design, Nicole's creations have a strong western influence with a contemporary flare.
